Hours of Service compliance is essential for truck drivers. The Department of Transportation (DOT) requires that drivers adhere to strict rules regarding their hours of service to ensure safety and prevent fatigue. This includes limits on the number of hours a driver can be on duty in a 24-hour period and the amount of rest time required. For example, a driver cannot drive more than 11 hours in a 14-hour period, and must have at least 8 hours of rest after 14 consecutive hours of duty. The Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSRs) provide the specific details for these rules. Drivers should keep accurate records of their hours of service to ensure compliance and avoid penalties. The Department of Transportation provides resources and guidance to help drivers understand and follow these regulations. For more information, visit the DOT website or contact a professional in the trucking industry.
